Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 20 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Heavy rain turning to showers, wintry for some.

This Evening and Tonight:
Heavy rain, turning to snow at times across northern England and southern Scotland, will gradually clear eastwards overnight. Otherwise a mix of clear spells and showers, with a risk of icy patches in the north. Windy, with coastal gales.

Thursday:
A drier and brighter day for many, with scattered showers, most frequent in the west. Northeastern Scotland cloudier with rain and snow at times. Windy in the north and east.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Sunshine and showers, wintry in the north. Some rain and snow in the south and southwest on Saturday and Sunday. Cold with a widespread frost by night.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.